PARENTAL INFLUENCES ON THE NEXT GENERATION'S INTENTION TO JOIN THE FAMILY BUSINESS

This study looks at providing greater clarity on how parents influence the decisions of their children to join the family business as their chosen career. The findings indicate that perceived parental outcomes, parental identification and parental expectations all have a significant influence on a next generation family member's intention to join the family business. It is hoped that the findings of this study will encourage parents who own family businesses to realise how they influence their children's decisions of whether to join them in the family business, and ultimately to contribute to its possible long-term survival and success.

DIMENSIONS OF A MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE WITHIN A MARINE TOURISM CONTEXT

This study examined the contribution of hedonism, involvement, knowledge, meaningfulness, novelty, refreshment and social-interaction, to the memorability of marine tourism experiences (MMTEs) in general, and shark-diving visits to marine protected areas and whale-watching in particular. Delight, a new and previously untested dimension was identified as another important contributor to creating MMTEs. All eight dimensions were found to enhance the memorability of a marine tourism experience in South Africa. However, meaningfulness and involvement were found to be the most important dimensions in the current study. The research resulted in a model that groups the dimensions into affective and cognitive domains. This model can be used as a framework by experience providers to enhance the memorability of their experiences on offer.

SUSTAINABLE COMPETITIVE TOURISM IN SOUTH AFRICA

This comprehensive study investigated the influence of three sets of tourism driving forces namely destination attributes, enabling country conditions and tourism planning and governance and on sustainable- and competitive tourism. The newly developed hypothesised model tested among domestic- and foreign tourists revealed that natural attraction promotional tactics influence both competitive and sustainable tourism. Three tourism driving forces influence only sustainable tourism, while four other tourism driving forces influence competitive tourism. The inter-relationship between competitive and sustainable tourism, as well as the influence of the demographic profile of tourists on their rating of the importance of the tourism driving forces, were established. Recommendations on how to market South Africa as a tourism destination were suggested for different stakeholder groups.

A PROPOSED SUSTAINABLE FUNDING FRAMEWORK FOR THE PUBLIC BROADCASTER IN SOUTH AFRICA

Financial pressure poses a threat to the financial sustainability of the public broadcaster. The study used various theories and models to develop a framework to test the financial sustainability of the South African Broadcasting Corporation (SABC). The empirical results revealed that internal stakeholders, a competitive environment and management of resources influence sustainable funding. In turn, sustainable funding has a positive influence on organisational outcomes, which are customer benefits and performance. The study developed a sustainable funding framework for the SABC with practical recommendations. In addition, the study contributes to the body of knowledge in the field of financial sustainability and can act as a foundation for future studies.
