MASTER OF EDUCATION (RESEARCH)

Title of dissertation:

EXPLORING TEACHERS' ATTITUDES TO IMPLEMENTING BLENDED LEARNING: A CASE STUDY

Thesis:

INVESTIGATING THE EXPERIENCES OF GRADE 8 ENGLISH FIRST ADDITIONAL LANGUAGE LEARNERS WITHIN AN ENGLISH HOME LANGUAGE CLASSROOM: A CASE STUDY

This research investigated how the experiences of non-mother tongue speakers in the English home language (EHL) classroom impacted on learners' identities. Photovoice, was used as a data collection tool that afforded Grade 8 learners the opportunity to voice their concerns and critically reflect on their experiences, using metaphorical images. The findings indicate that the EHL classroom became a space in which they felt trapped, anxious, caged and voiceless because they are not allowed to use their mother tongue. Analysis of the findings from four teachers suggests that curriculum assessment policy statement (CAPS) and national policy directives presume certain competencies but the realities for teachers and learners are different.
